

ABSTRACT

A system is provided for producing an integrated circuit using a stepper and a scanner in successive stages. Calibration data developed for the transfer of a wafer from the stepper to the scanner while maintaining the same orientation is transformed, and the transformed data is used to align a rotated 5 wafer on the scanner.